

Orientation /awri-en'taysh(e)n, o-/ n

- 1 orienting or being oriented
- 2 the state of being oriented; broadly arrangement, alignment
- 3 a usu general or lasting direction of thought, inclination, or interest
- 4 the change of position by an organism or a part in response to an external stimulus < the ~ of a plant towards the sun > - orientational adj, orientationally adv

orientate /'awri-entayt, 'o-/ , chiefly Br to orient to face or turn to the east

Dis-orientation = No direction, aimlessly searching.

DATE \@ "dd/MM/yy" 31/01/02

The rays of Divine attraction permeate the whole process of re-orientation and attract the heart to its goal. Simple laws of magnetism apply.

The Sun of Reality

We delineate the process purely for measurement but the whole process is continuous.

The process of delineation may be from Empowerment to Tranquility Zone to Discovery Zone to Tranquility Feast to Active Involvement in Bahai Community to Study Circle to Declaration to Teaching and ever onwards drawing nigh unto the Celestial Throne.